The National Monument to the Forefathers

- Five Pillars of Liberty: The monument visually represents five interconnected principles:
 1. Faith: The central and largest figure, representing faith in the one true God and His Word (the Geneva Bible). Faith is depicted as the primary foundation, with wisdom and divine inspiration. "Faith is pointing to the one true God of heaven. Faith also has a star on her forehead representing wisdom. Faith is also holding a book. And it's not just any book. It's the Bible."
 2. Morality: Seated below Faith, representing internal transformation through the Gospel (symbolized by an evangelist), leading to alignment with God's standards (Ten Commandments and Revelation). "Morality is an internal quality that began with a church transformation of your heart."
 3. Law: A figure representing laws derived from biblical morality, depicted with justice and mercy, ensuring civility and order. Man's laws must always line up under God's laws or they're not good laws.
 4. Education: A mother figure leading children in learning, emphasizing the importance of training future generations in biblical principles to ensure the perpetuation of liberty. They believed that if we would educate our children to the Second and third generation. We would get these principles deep into their heart and into their mind and it would result in one what everybody wants. Liberty.
 5. Liberty: The final figure, a strong "Liberty man" in the "full armor of God," symbolizing freedom from tyranny and the responsibility to defend these principles, leading to peace (represented by his wife). The chains on his wrists and his ankles are hanging there broken because tyranny has been overthrown.
- Path to Tyranny: Destroying a free nation involves reversing these principles, starting by corrupting education to change values, which then undermines laws, discards morality, and replaces biblical faith with alternative ideologies, ultimately leading to tyranny. If you can capture the education of our youth and teach them a whole new value system and you can teach them a whole new way of thinking through the textbooks in a public government school system, you can begin to unravel this whole thing.

- Call to Action: The segment concludes with a call for individuals to personalize these principles by cultivating personal faith, morality, engagement in governance, and responsible education of children, emphasizing that national restoration begins with individual transformation.
